"Didn't want me to go and leave you with the kids, did you?"
"No, that's not it at all. I had a lot to do to get ready for inventory. You know how important that is."
"That's all you seem to care about. Why should your job always come before me and the kids?"
"I'm just trying to provide for the family. Sometimes that takes more time than you realize. Besides, your place is at home, not at some art class. I don't like the idea of your going back to school so you can get a job. If you'd just let me work at it, I could make enough money to support us."
According to David and Ellen, this confrontation was similar to many others they'd had. They always repeated the same general pattern of communication: one accusation led to another, and the original point of contention was soon lost in a storm of spiraling debate, criticism, and recall of past mistakes.
How important is communication in marital relationship? What is the secret of successful God centered marriage?

Wishing you All the Best
